News for Knights of Columbus

A documentary produced by the Knights of Columbus, Enduring Faith: The Story of Native American Catholics, is now available for viewing online. You are invited to watch and share this new film, which explores the rich legacy of the Catholic faith among Indigenous communities and offers a beautiful example of how Christ reveals himself through the uniqueness of every culture.

Enduring Faith: The Story of Native American Catholics

- Discover how, in the 16th century, Our Lady of Guadalupe appeared as a mestiza woman to an Indigenous elder and inspired the largest conversion in world history.
- Hear the moving story of St. Kateri Tekakwitha, a 17th-century Algonquin-Mohawk woman who was canonized in 2012.
- Learn about a 20th-century Lakota healer, Nicholas Black Elk, whose cause for canonization is currently open.

The First Olympic Champion

One of the most distinguished — and improbable — victories in Olympic history occurred 125 years ago when, in 1896, James B. Connolly won the first event of the first modern Olympic Games. A 27-year-old son of poor Irish immigrants from South Boston, Connolly became the first Olympic champion in more than 1,500 years. He later became a member of the Knights of Columbus.

A Columbia cover from July 1932 honors James Connolly, the Olympic champion. The issue also featured an article from Connolly about his time in the Olympics.
